Deauville Talent Award

?Peter Dinklage began his career in independent productions. Tom DiCillo directs him as a dream character in It's Turning in Manhattan, Grand Prix at the 1995 Deauville Festival, then Michel Gondry entrusts him with a key role in Human Nature, presented at the Cannes Film Festival in 2001.

The following year, Thomas McCarthy's The Station Agent made him one of the revelations of American independent cinema. Coming out of the clichés with which short people are decked out, he takes on his first main role, that of a wounded man who will open up to others in this generous work where differences fade in the face of each person's experience.

Peter Dinklage then began a Hollywood career: he played alongside Vin Diesel in Find Me Guilty by Sidney Lumet (2006), Christina Ricci and James McAvoy in Penelope (2006) or Matthew MacFadyen in Happy Funeral by Frank Oz (2007). In 2008, he joined the cast of The Chronicles of Narnia - Prince Caspian by Andrew Adamson." Source: American Deauville Film Festival
